

At SA Water we are working together to deliver world class water services for a better life. As part of this we believe reconciliation is everyone's responsibility.

We are committed to building enduring and respectful relationships with the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community.

We respect the cultural and spiritual relationship Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people have with land and water and its importance to cultural vitality and resilience.

Important in meeting the challenges of the future is recognising our shared history and valuing the knowledge, experience and contribution of the world's oldest living culture.

Providing opportunities that build sustainable capability for our employees, suppliers and community is something we are committed to achieving and why we are focussed on:

- supporting Aboriginal communities with innovative and sustainable solutions to provide safe, clean water
- growing and retaining our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander workforce through ongoing career support and development
- developing a Corporation wide culture that demonstrates respect
- empowering Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander businesses to participate in opportunities through commercially competitive arrangements and ventures
- working with Aboriginal people to ensure all Aboriginal cultural heritage issues and activities are managed in a culturally appropriate and sensitive manner

Carolyn Pickles
Chair
SA Water Board

Roch Cheroux
Chief Executive
SA Water